RESEARCH:

Tom dooley is a popular legend and song about a man who was tried and hung for the murder of Laura Foster. According to the story Tom Dula, pronounced dooley, had an affair with laura. The affair ended with him killing her with a knife. This could be partly due to Tom also having an affair with Laura's cousin, Anne.

According to history Tom claimed Anne had nothing to do with laura's murder. She was left to go free. Tom on the other hand was hung for his crime on May 1, 1868. His Gravestone still stands today in Ferguson North Carolina.

CONNECTION TO TEXT:

Tom Dooley adds depth and meaning to the novel because the story is closely related to Brent's own. It is one of the first songs that he learns to play on his harmonica. The songs lyrics tell of a man accused of wrongfully killing a woman and his looming death sentence. Brent feels that he wrongly killed Lea and that his life is over because of his own wrongdoing. The guilt that brent feels has allowed him to believe that he has no escape, much like Tom Dooley. Unlike the song however, Brent is able to find redemption through his actions rather than face the end of his life based off of his mistake.
